

Family Relationship Centres (FRCs) play an integral role within the family law system. Through the state network of FRCs, there is significant capacity to support clients with Family Dispute Resolution (FDR), parenting education, co-located supports and referrals to other support services.

The FRC Training Day: Working Together in FDR aims to bring together practitioners from all over Western Australia to share their collective knowledge and experience of Family Dispute Resolution and therapy.

The objective of this training day is to raise awareness throughout the family law sector of the services and supports offered by FRCs, as well as share information on new research and best practice in Family Dispute Resolution, child-inclusive practice and client engagement.
